SPRING

Left Right

Pass the prize left or right every time you hear those words in the story, and whoever is holding it at the end wins!

It was the first day of spring, and Lily left her house early in the morning.

She right away noticed the warm sunshine and soft breeze. She turned right onto the garden path, excited to see what had changed overnight.

As she walked, she noticed a tiny bird building a nest right in the tree above her. To her left, bright daffodils swayed in the wind. "Spring is finally here!" she thought. She skipped down the path and turned left toward the park.

Just then, she spotted her friend Ben, who had left his house to go on a nature walk. "Look to your right!" he shouted. A butterfly had just landed on a tulip.

They walked together, stepping over a puddle that was right in the middle of the trail. "Let's go to the meadow," Ben said. "I saw something amazing there right before you got here!"

When they arrived, they saw a tiny nest hidden to the left of a big oak tree. Inside were three little blue eggs! "Wow!" said Lily. "We got here at just the right time!"

The two friends sat on the grass, watching the birds, flowers, and sunshine all around them. They knew they had come to the right place to celebrate spring!
